RIT NATION

We are well into Lent. How are you doing? If Lent has been a slow start for you, no worries...simply begin today. Remember, Lent is about “leaning into” God rather than distancing ourselves. Sometimes, when we find ourselves feeling lost or discouraged, we tend to go further down that road and stop giving attention to daily prayer or going to Mass. I’d invite each of us to consider taking a step closer to our God by leaning in closer. There are lots of ways to “lean in”. I am sure you can think of a few. If you would like to talk about more, please feel free to stop by the office and visit with Kevin or myself.

Here is a cool opportunity: Brother Guy Consolmagno, SJ is an astronomer and the Director of the Vatican Observatory and president of the Vatican Observatory Foundation (who even knew these things existed!) The headquarters for the Vatican Observatory is located outside of Rome, but, interestingly enough, there is a dependent research center located in Tucson at the University of Arizona. Brother Guy is coming to Nazareth College next week for two talks:

Why Do We Look to the Heavens?

March 1 @ 7 pm

at the Forum, Otto Shults Community Center

What Does “Catholic” Science Look Like?

March 2 @ 1:30 pm

Linehan Chapel, Golisano Academic Center

I heard Brother Guy speak last spring here in Rochester. I found it fascinating and challenging at the same time! I will admit, there were parts of his lecture I had no idea what he was talking about! But, I am guessing that many of you would!

Stations of the Cross will begin this Friday in the Allen Chapel at noon. Praying the stations—the walk Jesus took as he prepared to die—is a good practice for Lent and for our lives. As we consider the burdens Jesus carried, we too can place our burdens and worries on the cross to ease the load we sometimes carry. Stations will be led by two students: Mary Thumma and Ellen O’Neil. If you have never prayed the Stations of the Cross, they are great teachers! As always, all are welcome.

Know that we are here for you. To catch our attention, stop by the office, send an email/text or send pizza or flowers!

Have a good week.

Peace and good,

Alice MN
